Blanche Wiesen Cook is Distinguished Professor of history and women's studies at John Jay College of Criminal Justice and the Graduate Center of the City University of New York. She is the author of the critically acclaimed, best-selling three-volume biography of Eleanor Roosevelt.

Women in the U.S. have been pioneering printers, publishers, teachers, editors, journalists, and librarians from colonial times to the present day, blazing trails despite inequities of opportunity. Our literary community is much richer for their diverse contributions. Join our distinguished panelists as they discuss the strategies that they and literary women have used to overcome barriers.

Sarah Blackwood is an Associate Professor of English at Pace University. With Sarah Mesle, she is the co-founder and co-editor of the magazine Avidly and the forthcoming short book series from NYU Press, Avidly Reads.

Jamia Wilson is the executive director and publisher of the Feminist Press. She joined the Press after serving as Executive Director of Women, Action, & the Media, a direct-action network dedicated to creating gender justice in media at all levels.

Rosalind Reisner, Moderator is the editor and a contributing author of Women in the Literary Landscape: A Centennial Publication of the Women's National Book Association, published this fall by C&R Press.
